Brief Personal Evaluation:

On April 12, 2011 I hosted a father daughter dance titled "Me and My Movie ~~State~~" Star, overall this event was very successful. The girls walked in through the red carpet and were directed towards the Makeup counter where they could get their makeup done. Then they were directed toward the craft booth where they could make paper picture frames and decorate them for the photos they take throughout the evening. I felt like there should have been more games for father daughter bonding time but most of the girls preferred being involved with their friends. The real fun started when the DJ MC's and I started dancing to songs that were easy to learn and dance to by both daughter and father: for example, "cha cha slide" and "macerana". There was also a lovely backdrop where the father and daughter could take photos together with an action sign and Oscar trophy. One of the complaints that the children had was that we wouldn't play their song request, but many of their song requests had some vulgar language and/or related to drugs or alcohol, therefore was not age-appropriate for the dance. We ended the night with an ice cream social and a nice father daughter slow song.

EVENT EVALUATION FORM

Use this form as a guide to develop an evaluation for your event. Give the form to troops at the end of the event, or in their registration packets. Ask to have evaluation returned at close of event (schedule time in your program for completing evaluations, if appropriate), or at the next Service Unit meeting. (If, due to the nature of your event, you'd like each participant to fill out her own evaluation, you may want 2 different forms: one for leaders including the logistics questions, another shorter and simpler version for the girls.)

Great event. It was fun at home setting up the father daughter date.

12. Ideas for the future?
It seems the older girls needed to be engaged more so that they would stay with their dads and not run outside to hang out together.

9. What did you and your girls like BEST about the event?
The special time spent with Father and Daughter. The dancing was a blast!
10. What did you and your girls like LEAST about the event?
My daughter was a little bummed her song request was not played.
11. Comments? Suggestions?
It would have been better if it was held on a Friday evening when it's not a school night.
12. Ideas for the future?
They need to play song requests that are appropriate of course. My daughter felt there should time doing together.
